Loretta Sloan is a member of Adventist Health Physician Services' leadership team. In her role as VP of Operations Performance and Support, she leads a team of educators, performance specialists, and project managers with the primary responsibility of improving performance and supporting physician practice staff and physicians. A significant element of driving operational performance is the use of technology to drive revenue, patient experience, and clinical outcomes.

Loretta has 25 years of physician practice healthcare experience, all in large multi-specialty groups within large integrated systems. She has filled a variety of roles in physician practice settings including policy and process development, Training and Development, Scheduling and EHR support management, and clinic administration. Loretta has led the operations component of both Practice Management and EHR system implementations for more than 1,000 physicians and their support staff.
